PREFACE

This report presents statistics on the number of inhabitants of the State, its counties, and minor civil divisions (townships, etc.). In addition, separate figures are also presented for urban places, wards of cities of 5,000 or more, and other areas of the State. These data are based upon tabulations from the Seventeenth Decennial Census of the population of the United States, its Territories, and possessions conducted as of April 1, 1950. Provision for the Seventeenth Decennial Census was made in the act providing for the Fifteenth and subsequent decennial censuses which was approved on June 18, 1929.

The major portion of the information compiled from the Census of Population of 1950 will appear in Volume I, Number of Inhabitants, and in Volume II, Characteristics of the Population. This report is a preprint of Chapter 23 (Minnesota) of Volume I, which is to present, in a single publication, statistics on the number of inhabitants for each State.

The materials presented here will also appear as Chapter A of Part 23 (Minnesota) of Volume II. Volume II will comprise a series of separately published parts, one for each State and a summary for the United States. The use of separate parts makes the basic materials on characteristics of the population for a given State available to the public in a single publication. Within the part for a State, Chapter A will recapitulate the statistics on the number and distribution of the population within a State; Chapter B will present statistics on the general characteristics of the population of the various political subdivisions of the State, such as counties, incorporated places, and the like; and Chapter C will present data on the detailed characteristics of the population of the larger areas within the State, such as cities of 100,000 inhabitants or more and standard metropolitan areas.

The materials presented here were prepared under the supervision of Howard G. Brunsman, Chief, Population and Housing Division, and Dr. Henry S. Shryock, Jr., Assistant Chief for Population Statistics, by Dr. Henry D. Sheldon, Chief, Demographic Statistics Section, and Charles P. Brinkman, Chief, Population Distribution Unit; the compilation of the statistics was under the direction of Robert B. Voight, Assistant Chief for Operations. The collection of the information on which these statistics are based was under the supervision of Lowell T. Galt, Chief, Field Division. The geographic work, including the delineation of special types of urban territory and the preparation of maps, was under the supervision of Clarence E. Batschelet, Chief, Geography Division.

MINNESOTA

Number of Inhabitants

The State.—Minnesota was organized as a Territory in 1849 from unorganized area formerly within the Territories of Iowa and Wisconsin. It included an area now comprising the State of Minnesota, the eastern parts of the States of North and South Dakota, and a small part of Nebraska. In 1858 that part of the Territory lying within the present boundaries of Minnesota was admitted to the Union as the thirty-second State. Its population on April 1, 1950, according to the Seventeenth Census, was 2,982,483. The State has a land area of 80,009 square miles. In 1950 there was an average of 37.3 inhabitants per square mile as compared with an average of 34.9 in 1940. Among the States, Minnesota ranked eighteenth in population and thirteenth in land area.

In 1860, the first year in which Minnesota was enumerated as a State in a Federal census, it had a population of 172,023 (table 1). In 1950, 90 years later, its population was about 17 times as large. The State grew rapidly between 1860 and 1900, reaching a population of 1,751,394, more than 10 times as large as in 1860. Thereafter, the rate of growth slackened. In the twentieth century, the largest numerical increase and rate of growth came in the decade 1900 to 1910. The gain of 190,183 between 1940 and 1950 represented an increase of 6.8 percent over the 2,792,300 persons enumerated in 1940.

Usual place of residence.—According to usual Census practice, which dates back to 1790, each person enumerated in the 1950 Census was counted as an inhabitant of his usual place of residence or usual place of abode, which is generally construed to mean the place where he lives and sleeps most of the time. This place is not necessarily the same as his legal residence, voting residence, or domicile, although, in the vast majority of cases, these different bases of classification would be identical.

In the application of this rule, persons were not always counted as residents of the places in which they happened to be found by the census enumerators. Persons in places where guests usually pay for quarters (hotels, etc.) were enumerated on the night of April 11, and those whose usual place of residence was elsewhere were allocated to their homes. Visitors found staying in private homes, however, were not ordinarily interviewed there. Information on persons away from their usual place of residence was obtained from other members of their families, landlords, etc. If an entire family was expected to be away during the whole period of the enumeration, information on it was obtained from neighbors. A matching process was used to eliminate duplicate reports for persons who reported for themselves while away and were also reported by their families at home.

Persons in the armed forces quartered on military installations were enumerated as residents of the States, counties, and minor civil divisions in which their installations were located. Members of their families were enumerated where they actually resided. In the 1950 Census, college students living away from home were considered residents of the communities in which they were residing while attending college, rather than as persons temporarily absent from their parental homes as was the practice in 1940.

In 1950 the crews of vessels of the American Merchant Marine in harbors of the United States were counted as part of the population of the ports in which their vessels were berthed on April 1, 1950. In 1940 such persons were treated as part of the population of the port from which the vessel operated. Inmates of institutions, who ordinarily live there for long periods of time, were counted as inhabitants of the place in which the institution was located; whereas patients in general hospitals, who ordinarily have short stays, were counted at, or allocated to, their homes. All persons without a usual place of residence were counted where they were enumerated.

Urban and rural population.—The 1950 urban population of Minnesota numbered 1,624,914 persons, or 54.5 percent of the population of the State (table 1). The urban population was living in the 91 urban places in the State and in other territory included in the urban fringe of the Minneapolis-St. Paul Urbanized Area and the Minnesota part of the urban fringe of the Duluth (Minn.)—Superior (Wis.) Urbanized Area. Two-thirds of the urban population of the State was living in urbanized areas (table 2).

The rural population of Minnesota comprised 1,357,569 persons, or 45.5 percent of the population of the State (table 1). Of the rural population, 197,003 persons, or 14.5 percent, were living in the 126 incorporated places and the 1 unincorporated place of 1,000 to 2,500 inhabitants (table 2).

Urban definition.—Under the urban definition established for use in the 1950 Census, the urban population comprises all persons living in (a) places of 2,500 inhabitants or more incorporated as cities, boroughs, towns,¹ and villages; (b) the densely settled urban fringe, including both incorporated and unincorporated areas, around cities of 50,000 or more; and (c) unincorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more outside any urban fringe. The remaining population is classified as rural. According to the urban definition used in previous censuses, the urban population comprised all persons living in incorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more and areas (usually minor civil divisions) classified as urban under special rules relating to population size and density.

In both definitions, the most important component of the urban territory is the group of incorporated places having 2,500 inhabitants or more. A definition of urban territory restricted to such places, however, would exclude a number of equally large and densely settled places, merely because they were not incorporated places. Under the old definition, an effort was made to avoid some of the more obvious omissions by the inclusion of the places urban under special rules. Even with these rules, however, many large and closely built-up places were excluded from the urban territory. To improve the situation in the 1950 Census, the Bureau of the Census set up, in advance of enumeration, boundaries for urban-fringe areas around cities of 50,000 or more and for unincorporated places outside urban fringes. All the population residing in urban-fringe areas and in unincorporated places of 2,500 or more is classified as urban according to the 1950 definition. (Of course, the incorporated places of 2,500 or more are urban in their own right.) Consequently, the special rules of the old definition are no longer necessary.

According to the new urban definition, the 1950 urban population of Minnesota consisted of the 1,607,446 persons in the 91 incorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more and the 17,468 persons living in other territory included in the Minneapolis-St. Paul Urbanized Area and the Minnesota part of the Duluth (Minn.)—Superior (Wis.) Urbanized Area. Since there were no places urban under special rule in Minnesota according to the old definition, the urban population under the old definition consisted of the inhabitants of the 91 incorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more. The population of the second element—17,468—represents the gain in the urban population which resulted from the change in definition.

Although the Bureau of the Census has employed other definitions in the course of its history, the statistics on the population by urban and rural residence for the years 1850 to 1940 are shown in accordance with the 1940 definition. The 1950 statistics are shown in accordance with both the new and old definitions.

Trends of urban and rural population.—Trends in the urban and rural population can be examined only on the basis of the old definition. On this basis, the urban population nearly tripled between 1900 and 1950, rising from 598,100 to 1,607,446 (table 1). The largest numerical increase as well as the most rapid rate of growth in the urban population over the 50-year period came in the decade 1900 to 1910, when it increased by 252,194, or 42.2 percent. The increase between 1940 and 1950 of 217,348 was at the rate of 15.6 percent. All but 1 of the 22 incorporated places of 10,000 inhabitants or more shared in the increase of the urban population in the decade 1940 to 1950 (table 4). The rate of change in these places ranged from a decrease of 0.7 percent in Hibbing village to an increase of 363.3 percent in Richfield village.

The two cities of 100,000 inhabitants or more in the State in 1900 (Minneapolis and St. Paul) accounted for one-fifth of the population of the State; by 1950 nearly one-third of the population of the State was living in these two cities (table 3). The proportion of the population of the State living in urban territory rose from 34.1 to 53.9 percent over the 50-year period.

The rural population of Minnesota rose from 1,153,294 in 1900 to 1,375,037 in 1950, despite losses in two of the five decades (table 1). The loss of 27,165 between 1940 and 1950 represented a decline of 1.9 percent below the 1940 rural population of 1,402,202. The proportion of the population living in rural territory declined steadily from 65.9 percent in 1900 to 46.1 percent in 1950.

Counties.—The counties in Minnesota ranged in size from Cook with a population of 2,900 to Hennepin with a population of 676,579 (table 5). Between 1940 and 1950, 38 of the 87 counties in Minnesota increased in population, 48 lost population, and 1 had no change in population. In the previous decade all but four of the counties had had increases. Four-fifths of the increase for the State between 1940 and 1950 was accounted for by Hennepin and Ramsey Counties, which had increases of 107,680 and 45,397, respectively.

Minor civil divisions.—To the primary political divisions into which counties are divided, the Bureau of the Census applies the general term "minor civil divisions." The minor civil divisions in Minnesota are the townships, cities, some of the villages, and one borough (Belle Plaine). The remaining villages form subdivisions of the minor civil divisions in which they are located.

Table 6 shows statistics on the population of each county by minor civil divisions for the last three censuses. The population of each village that is a subdivision of a township and the one unincorporated place—Valley Acres—is shown in italics under the population of the township in which it is located. When an incorporated place lies in two or more counties or minor civil divisions, the population of the several parts is shown in table 6 in the appropriate counties and minor civil divisions, and each part is designated by "part." Figures on the total population of such places are given in table 7. The unincorporated place is designated by "uninc." Changes between the 1940 Census and 1950 Census in the boundaries of the areas listed are shown in notes to table 6. For changes in boundaries prior to the 1940 Census, see reports of the Sixteenth Census (1940), Population, Vol. I, pp. 539-550, and reports of earlier censuses.

Incorporated and unincorporated places.—In 1950 there were 782 incorporated places (cities, villages, and one borough) in Minnesota. There were 2,017,720 persons living in the incorporated places, 410,274 of whom were in the 691 places with fewer than 2,500 inhabitants. Valley Acres, the one unincorporated place of 1,000 inhabitants or more delineated by the Bureau of the Census in Minnesota, had a population of 1,727. The incorporated places ranged in size from Island View village with a population of 18 to Minneapolis city with a population of 521,718.

Political units recognized as incorporated places in the 1950 Census are those which are incorporated as cities, boroughs, towns, and villages with the exception that towns are not recognized as incorporated places in the New England States, New York, and Wisconsin.

The Bureau of the Census has delineated boundaries for the thickly settled urban fringe around cities of 50,000 or more and has also delineated boundaries for unincorporated places of 1,000 or more which are densely settled population centers without corporate limits. Although there are unincorporated places within the urban fringe, it was not feasible to establish boundaries for such places and therefore they are not identified as separate places.

The count of urban places in the 1950 Census includes all incorporated places of 2,500 or more regardless of location and unincorporated places of 2,500 or more which are located outside the urban-fringe areas. Incorporated places of less than 2,500 which lie in the urban fringe are not recognized as urban places.

Urbanized areas.—There was one urbanized area entirely within Minnesota and another partly within the State. The first area, the Minneapolis-St. Paul Urbanized Area, had 985,101 inhabitants. The Minnesota part of the Duluth (Minn.)—Superior (Wis.) Urbanized Area had a population of 107,364. Of the 1,092,465 persons in Minnesota living in urbanized areas, 937,578 were in the three central cities—Minneapolis, St. Paul, and Duluth—and 154,887 in the urban-fringe areas. The urban-fringe areas included a population of 147,146 in 22 incorporated places and 7,741 in the unincorporated parts (tables 2 and 9).

Each urbanized area contains at least one city with 50,000 inhabitants or more in 1940 or according to a special census taken since 1940, and some urbanized areas contain two or more cities of 50,000. Each urbanized area also includes the surrounding closely settled incorporated places and unincorporated areas that meet the criteria listed in the section below on "Urban fringe." Thus, the territory of an urbanized area may be classified into incorporated parts and unincorporated parts. (See urbanized area maps.)

An urbanized area also may be divided into central city or cities and urban fringe as defined below.

Central cities.—Although an urbanized area may contain more than one city of 50,000 or more, not all cities of this size are necessarily central cities. The largest city of an area is always a central city. In addition, the second and third most populous cities in the area may qualify as central cities provided they have a population of at least one-third of that of the largest city in the area and a minimum of 25,000 inhabitants. The names of the individual urbanized areas indicate the central cities of the areas.

Urban fringe.—The urban fringe includes that part of the urbanized area which is outside the central city or cities. The following types of areas are embraced if they are contiguous to the central city or cities or if they are contiguous to any area already included in the urban fringe:

1. Incorporated places with 2,500 inhabitants or more in 1940 or at a subsequent special census conducted prior to 1950.

2. Incorporated places with fewer than 2,500 inhabitants containing an area with a concentration of 100 dwelling units or more with a density in this concentration of 500 units or more per square mile. This density represents approximately 2,000 persons per square mile and normally is the minimum found associated with a closely spaced street pattern.

3. Unincorporated territory with at least 500 dwelling units per square mile.

4. Territory devoted to commercial, industrial, transportation, recreational, and other purposes functionally related to the central city.

Also included are outlying noncontiguous areas with the required dwelling unit density located within $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles of the main contiguous urbanized part, measured along the shortest connecting highway, and other outlying area within one-half mile of such noncontiguous areas which meet the minimum residential density rule.

"Uninc." designates an unincorporated place. Figures for 1940 and 1930 not available for unincorporated places or places incorporated since Apr. 1, 1940. Minor civil division figures for 1940 and 1930 do not necessarily add to county totals. Areas for which no population has been reported at any of the last 3 censuses are not shown. Boundary changes between 1940 and 1950 given in footnotes; for changes between 1930 and 1940, see reports of 16th Census (1940), Population, Vol. I, pp. 539-550. Total population of a place located in 2 or more minor civil divisions or counties appears in table 7.
